

A world map illustrating the global distribution of the six major world religions. The map uses a color-coded system to represent different religious groups across various continents and countries. The colors used are: Green, Blue, Yellow, Orange, Red, and Purple. The map includes latitude and longitude markings, with labels for 120°W, 60°W, 0°, 60°E, and 120°E. The distribution shows a high concentration of certain religions in specific regions, such as Christianity in Europe and the Americas, and Islam in the Middle East and parts of Asia.
